OPENING THE WORLD WITH OPEN ACCESS

Open access (OA) scholarship is digital, online, free of charge, and free of most copyright and licensing restrictions. There are numerous benefits to OA publishing. Scholarship is available to the world, OA articles are cited more often, and they gather more social media attention.

LEVER PRESS

Lever Press is distinguished by three key commitments: editorial alignment with the mission and ethos of the liberal arts, a "platinum" approach to open access, and digitally-native production processes to support innovative projects that go "beyond the book."

EXPLORE OERS

Open Educational Resources (OERs) are teaching and learning materials that are freely available online with few use restrictions. Faculty will be offered the chance to participate in a paid OER exploration program to identify and review open resources in their discipline.

Look for the call for participants this fall.

OPEN ACCESS FUND

While many open access publishers do not charge their authors, some of the most recognized titles are maintained by Author Publication Charges (APCs). This fund helps offset the cost of APCs for Furman authors, facilitating more choice in publishing venue.

Launching during Open Access Week, October 24 - 30, 2016.

BEYOND FURMAN. The Furman University Libraries are also pleased to sponsor international OA initiatives. We are supporting members of the Directory of Open Access Journals (DOAJ) which provides access and discoverability to open access, peer-reviewed journals. We are also pledging to help "unlatch" six collections of high-quality, university press ebooks through Knowledge Unlatched.
