The people are long impatient of the violation of their rights and the neglect of the duties they owe to the commonwealth. The Virginia Convention has, therefore, determined to call a convention of the states of the Union, to be held at Baltimore on the 22d of April next, for the purpose of conventions to consider and determine upon the existence of invasion of the commonwealth. A few days after the convention has assembled, the people of the United States, in convention, shall meet in convention, and, by the influence of the convention of the states of the Union, shall be prevailed upon to assemble in convention, to consider and determine upon the existence of invasion of the commonwealth. A few days after the convention has assembled, the people of the United States, in convention, shall meet in convention, and, by the influence of the convention of the states of the Union, shall be prevailed upon to assemble in convention, to consider and determine upon the existence of invasion of the commonwealth. A few days after the convention has assembled, the people of the United States, in convention, shall meet in convention, and, by the influence of the convention of the states of the Union, shall be prevailed upon to assemble in convention, to consider and determine upon the existence of invasion of the commonwealth. A few days after the convention has assembled, the people of the United States, in convention, shall meet in convention, and, by the influence of the convention of the states of the Union, shall be prevailed upon to assemble in convention, to consider and determine upon the existence of invasion of the commonwealth. A few days after the convention has assembled, the people of the United States, in convention, shall meet in convention, and, by the influence of the convention of the states of the Union, shall be prevailed upon to assemble in convention, to consider and determine upon the existence of invasion of the commonwealth. A few days after the convention has assembled, the people of the United States, in convention, shall meet in convention, and, by the influence of the convention of the states of the Union, shall be prevailed upon to assemble in convention, to consider and determine upon the existence of invasion of the commonwealth.
The public are daily conjecturing whether or not Gov. Wise will demand from the Executives of Ohio and New York the bodies of Gerritt Smith, Gidding, and others, who may be implicated in the Harpers Ferry affair, and operations are indulged as to what will be the course of those Governors, and as to the probable results of a refusal on their part to deliver up such citizens of their respective States as indictments may be found against by the Virginia authorities for aiding and abetting the recent acts of invasion of that Commonwealth. A brief reference to the provisions of the Federal Constitution may assist in determining the matter.

The instrument provides that any person charged in any State with treason, felony, or other crime, who shall have fled therefrom, and shall be found in another State, shall, on demand of the executive authority of the State from which he fled, be delivered up to be removed to the State having jurisdiction of the crime. This clause evidently contemplates that the party charged must have fled out of the State making the demand, and if this construction is correct, there will be no ease at which the Governor of Virginia will be put to discharge his constitutional duty.

The prosecution of the Harper's Ferry affair, it appears, may be tried by the State of New York, Ohio, and other States in which the crime was committed. The State Governments may take the initiative, and demand the delivery of the apprehended men, and the Federal Government will be powerless to interfere. The destruction of the United States property is so great that any Northern jury, impartially selected, would find these men not guilty, if sufficient testimony can be adduced to establish their guilt. The mass of the men always men of the South who detect the crime of Brown as heinous as Southern men do, and would not fail in doing their duty. They may honestly believe that slavery not only retards the progress of this country, but is a great social evil, but they certainly do not justly murder, arson, rape, and other necessary constituents of such a general devastation as Brown and his comrade have undertaken to execute, but in which the faithful slaves have participated, and of which they testified their abhorrence.