The Daily Picturine

CARMEN EMPIRE'S INSANITY.

It is reported that the exiled wife of Carmen has been placed in a lunatic asylum. She is said to be in a state of delirium and to be suffering from mental disturbances. The case has caused great alarm and consternation in the community, and a number of efforts have been made to obtain her release. However, the authorities have refused to comply with these demands, and the situation remains unresolved.

The Daily Picturine

COFFEE AND CONFECTIONERS' NEWS.

CAFE RAJ, Nov. 11, 1889.

One of the best-known coffee-houses in the city has been closed down due to financial difficulties. The management has announced that the cafe will remain closed until further notice. The cafe has been a popular meeting place for the local business community, and its closure is expected to cause considerable inconvenience.

The Daily Picturine

LONDON, Nov. 11, 1889.

The London Temperance Union has announced the opening of a new cafe, called the Temperance Cafe, in the heart of the city. The cafe will be open from 8 am to 11 pm, and will offer a wide selection of refreshments, including coffee, tea, and light meals. The cafe is expected to be a popular venue for people seeking a more wholesome alternative to the many alcohol-filled cafes in the area.

The Daily Picturine

THE GALE ON THE SEA.

A severe gale has swept through the Channel, causing extensive damage to shipping. Many ships have been washed ashore, and several have sunk. The authorities have issued a warning for all vessels to avoid the area. The weather conditions are expected to improve later in the day.

The Daily Picturine

THE CRIMEA.

A revolutionary plot has been uncovered in the Crimea, and the authorities have arrested a number of suspects. The plot was allegedly aimed at overthrowing the current government and establishing a new regime. The suspects are expected to be tried in a military court, and the outcome of the trial is uncertain.

The Daily Picturine

TO EVERYONE!

We hope to be of service to you, and to offer you the best in quality and price. Our selection of products includes a wide range of items, from clothing to electronics. We are constantly updating our inventory to ensure that you have access to the latest and greatest products available.

The Daily Picturine

ONCE LATER FRIDAY.

COTTEN AND CO.

Important Political Notice.

CAPE REN, Nov. 11, 1889.

The Cape Town government has announced that it is withdrawing its support for the current president, and is calling for new elections. The move has been met with widespread support, and the president is expected to resign within the next few days. The political situation in the country remains tense, with many calling for a more decisive change in leadership. that resistance. He came to preach sedition and robbery, as the proper instruments for the accomplishment of his views, and his spirit of negro rights. The pursuit of these aims became the object of intense and uncompromising hatred in his thoughts that it got to be the one idea which dominated all others and made a force and bloody fanatic of him who was not naturally cruel by temperament.

We have said that it is not surprising that the effect of recent events should have unhinged men from this state, with a brain so fevered and a judgment so clouded as his must have been. Many men not totally depraved in utterly insane, the result of the outbreak at Harper's Ferry must have been a dreadful shock. That he had a guilty knowledge of the plans of which this was one, and of the purpose of invasion, in some form, if not specifically that of Brown, is very evident. It is in conformity with opinions publicly expressed. No one could have been less likely that he gave money directly for this particular object. He has given large sums, before for objects of the same essential character, and it is the practical embodiment of the theories he has preached and labored for.

If he have any sensibility left—if he be not entirely without nerves and heart, a mere bore with a high-sounding name and a fine appearance, and alarm at the consequences of the crimes which he has been encouraging so recklessly—the crime to which he has been inciting others, and for which they are to pay by the forfeit of their lives. If there were no more for the train of unbreakable calamities which the success of their attempt would bring upon hundreds of innocent families, the least, at least, be composition, sorrow, and regret, for the deluded consciences who rushed into the foolish enterprise under the inspiration of such doctrines as Gerrit Smith has preached, and in the expectation of succor from such men as he is, and as are prepared for such work. He cannot but feel that he is morally guilty of their blood—their temper into the crime which has led them to shameful death.

Perhaps the sense of this awful responsibility may have come with sudden awakening effect upon the conscience, and startled it into a knowledge of the enormity of the crimes to which it had been dragged, and the levered brain gave way before the shock. Perhaps the fear of consequences, the apprehension of punishment, the sense of repair for himself, may have helped to overthrow reason, and to give a relief from present terror, and an asylum from punishment in the unconsciousness of madness. None of these are improbable effects of the Harper's Ferry events on a man of Gerrit Smith's temperament, history, faculties and fanaticism, and by way of reason, he will have proven himself, in some respects, a better man than those who, guilty as he is of the great conspiracy against humanity and justice, can look calmly on the frightful disasters they are inflicting, and the bloody catastrophe, and go about remorselessly to prepare new schemes and subtle wickedness by cannoning the foiled conspirators as heroes and martyrs.

Mrs. Mary H. Walling died recently, near Trenton, N. J., aged 99 years. The beauty of her character, the vigor of her discrimination, and unlimited range of her mental faculties during so long a life, and her many memories of the Revolutionary era, attached more than local interest to her decease.